Congratulations on your new puppy! We want to help make your dog ownership a happy and healthy experience. We would also like to thank you for choosing us as your puppy's veterinarians and we will strive to give them the best medical care available.

We know that dog ownership is a big responsibility and expenses on a new puppy certainly add up fast. To help minimize some of the health care costs, we have developed the Puppy Health Program. Your puppy will be given a thorough physical exam to determine it's general health and to rule out any congenital birth defects. Two stool samples will be requested to check your puppy for intestinal parasites (worms). Parasites are identified by microscopically observing the eggs, which the adult worms, when present, pass into the bowel of the puppy.

There are 7 diseases we recommend vaccination for:

Distemper- A viral infectious disease that affects any system of the body. All dogs are susceptible, but in young animals, it is usually fatal.

Hepatitis- Another viral disease affecting the liver and kidneys of young dogs.

Leptospirosis- A spirochete bacterial infection transmitted usually through rodents: can be transmitted to humans.

Parainfluenza- A viral respiratory infection that is highly contagious.

Parvo- A severe and often fatal viral infection of the gastrointestinal tract, characterized by vomiting, diarrhea, and often death.

Corona- Similar to Parvo, causing vomiting and diarrhea.

Rabies- A fatal viral disease which attacks the central nervous system. Transmitted to both humans and animals by the bite of an infected animal.

Not included in the Puppy Health Program are Lyme, Bordetella and Giardia Vaccine or any medical treatment for a problem detected on exam. After the initial vaccinations, an annual physical, blood screen, vaccines, heartworm and fecal exam are recommended to promote adequate immunity and general good health of your dog.

Spaying and neutering are routinely performed at 6 months of age.

Non-refundable.
